Industry and Opportunity

The Pet Care industry, which is product driven, has seen rapid growth across the world. Consumer technology has been used as an umbrella term for any type of technology created with the general public's needs and use in mind. As it stands, India's digital infrastructure has been expanding for the better part of a decade, bringing with it more availability, exposure, and penetration of a variety of choices in the same product or service category.

In general, there were a lot of pet adoptions during and after Covid 19, particularly among young families, couples, and the elderly. Services like training, walking, boarding, etc. fell by the wayside as a commercial enterprise and increasingly depended on conventional approaches and suppliers. The strategy for this market is to take advantage of this wave and the strength of the modern technology to provide services that add real value to Pet owner's everyday lives.
